

COSW'12 China Open Source Week

October 15-20, 2012
Beijing and Nanjing, China

Presentation and Sponsor Package

Co-Organized By:

COSW'12, the China Open Source Week 2012, is a open source event like no other in China.

At COSW'12 open source users, activists, academics, executives, professionals, luminaries and vendors merge their horizons into a unique experience.

COSW'12 is all about sharing information, building networks, discovering technology and developing new opportunities.

Come and see what the future holds for you. Be involved in COSW'12!

A Unique Open Source Experience

- Come and discover
- Come and share
- Come and get inspired

COSW'12 The China Open Source Week

China Open Source Week is designed to extend the reach of open source beyond the scope of universities and to build awareness for open source as a business model. The event also demonstrates open source as a sustainable and balanced way to develop, use and distribute software, rather than simply a means to (legally) download code.

Save the dates!

Praise for the Corporate Networking Meeting

“I enjoyed the mixture of Chinese and international speakers. The sessions were very informative and I made some useful contacts.”

Cedric Carbone, CTO, Talend

“The OW2 Corporate Meeting is a meeting about technology but with a business perspective.”

Wei Wang, Technology Center for Software Engineering, ISCAS

“I go to lots of conferences, this one was very special because the content was very dense and yet the atmosphere so informal. It was a very positive experience.”

Peter Junge, OpenOffice Community Manager

“Great meeting, great people. Congratulations OW2. Let me know when you do it again.”

Charles Souillard, CTO, BonitaSoft

“I liked the diversity of the presentations that were business-oriented, not simply technological, and the stimulating discussions.”

Hailong Sun, BeiHang University

“The open discussions at the end of each session were really inspiring, I have rarely seen such open interaction between the speakers and the audience.”

Alexandre Lefebvre, France Telecom
